LITERARY ITEMS.

Mesers. Hurd & Houghton have in press a complete | RVING, and uniform edition of the works of Lord Macaniay from the late publication of Lady Trevelyan. It will be comprised in 16 or 17 volumes, crown 8vo, atercotyped at the Riverside Press, The "History of England," with a portrett and Bishop Milman's memoir of the historian, will be published early in May. It will be followed by the "Speeches, the Essays, the Poems, and the Introductory Report, upon the Indian Penal Code," with the notes appended to that code, in which its leading provisions were explained and defended. In preparing the new edition, Ludy Trevelvan thought it right to include some portion of what his lordship placed on record as a Jurist in the East. The papers selected were entirely written by Lord Macaulay, and chiefly relate to general principles of jurisprudence, which are of universal application. In an appendix to the Riverside edition are also given the letters of Lord Macaulay to the Bishop of Exeter, touching the Bishop's criticism of his statements in regard to the Church of England. In these letters-now for the first time reprinted in this country-the historian triumphantly vindicates his original positions. A few notes also are added, showing the of controversy between the friends of William Penn and the

M. Kirkland; "Life of Benjamin Silliman, M. D., Li. D., late Professor of Chemistry, Geology, and Mineralogy in Yale College, Founder and Editor of the 'American Journal of Science and Arts," etc., by George P. Fisher, Professor in Yale College, with a portrait and other illustrations; the "Second Volume of Lange's Commentary," containing Mark, edited by the Rev. W. G. T. Shedd, and Luke, edited by the Rev. C. C. Starbuck: the fifth and sixth volumes of Fronde's "History of England, from the Fall of Wolsey to the Death of Elizabeth;" and part second of Stanley's " Lectures on the History of the Jewish Church, from Samuel to the Captivity." A new catalogue of the Mercantile Library has just been published by the association, containing the titles of at least one hundred and fifty thousand volumes. No complete catalogue has been published before for sixteen years, and the present volume will supply a want which has occasioned considerable inconvenience to the numerous clerks, business men, studious ladies, and readers in general, who are in the habit of frequenting the library. It is intended for the future to keep up a daily process of cataloguing by a simple and ingeniou ethod, so that whenever another catalogue shall be required, the work can easily be made ready for the printer without disturbing the regular business of the library. The present catalogue is on the old plan, containing an alphabetical list under names of authors, and classified index arranged by subjects, and a separate list of novels entered in duplicate under their author's names and under titles.

The Mitre Tavern, Mitre Court, Fleet-st., in the eczy corner of the coffee-room of which stood Dr. Johnson's easy chair, over which was placed a cast of Nolleken's bust of the moralist, has just been pulled down. It was here that "Johnson of that ilk," as he called himself, in allusion to his residence is Johnson's Court opposite, during his Soctish tour, planned shor cour, as ne sat at supper, enjoying his port wine, "of which," says Boswell, "he sometimes drank a bottle;", bere, too, which his biographer calls their "old rendezvous," Johnson, Goldsmith, and Boswell frequently met at mine school to particle of that social meal. On one occasion, clock to partake of that social meal. On one occasion, Oglivie was there expatiating in Johnson's company on "the great many noble prospects of Scotland." "True, Sir," replied the Doctor, "I believe you have a great many. Norway, too, has noble, wild prospects, and Lapland is remarkable for pro tigious, noble, wild prospects; but, Sir, let me tell you, the noblest prospect which a Scotchman ever sees, is the high road that leads him to England."

Mr. W. Harrison Ainsworth, the proprietor of "Bent, ey's Miscellany," has obtained an in ing Mr. Pentley from publishing the "Temple Bar Magazine," Mr. Bentley, on parting with the "Miscellany" to Mr. Ains worth, having covananted not to publish any periodical of a like nature to "Bentley's Miscellany." Vice-Chancellor Kin-dersley made the order, without prejudice to the publication of the magazine, until the hearing of the cause, and to the right

A London journal has directed very marked attention to the practice of a foreign bookseller in twisting adverse criticisms into good ones for advertising purposes—thus deceiving the public, and, as the journal in question stated, "converting condemnation into entirely unmerited eulogy."

Another instance has just been pointed out. In a denunciatory review of a work by a new poet, the writer remarked:
"And this extraordinary production Mr. — modestly conceives to be equal to Goethe!" which unsatisfactory opinion was served up to the public in next week's advertisement:
"Extraordinary production * * equal to Goethe." This unsavory dodge, we fear, is not always confined to the meridian of London

THE SOUTH SINCE THE WAR.

By SIDNEY ANDREWS.

Correspondent of The Boston Advertiger and Chicago Tribune.

One Volume. Issue $\frac{\pi}{2}$.

This book discusses matters of timmediate and engrossing interest, pertaining to Reconstruction at the South. It is the record of observations made by the author during a journey of several months in a number of the Southern States, after the eccasion of hostilities. He had every opportunity to note the effect produced upon the people of the South by the complete annihilation of their military power, and to observe the change caused by the reconstruction policy of the President. He was brought in contact with representatives of all accounts of his conversations with various persons, with reference to what is called the "neart question." He describes the Conventions held in North and South Carolina and Georgia, to act upon the policy of the President; the present condition of chings at Andersonville, Salisoury and Florance; scenes in the track of Sherman's Army, and Georgia.

The work is marked by the same fairness and clearness of statement.

THERP'S NO SUCH GIRL AS SALLY."

EVERTHODY IN LOVE WITH SALLY.

The popularity of this new Song is shown by the experience of Jenkius. Mind you—the Song had been out but times days. Jenkins stated to come down town, and hallings car he inquired whether it passed near Wall et. "There's no such Girl as Sally." The replied the Conductor, 'hor in," At the Post Office a clerk handed him his letters, and said, "There's no Such Girl as Sally." The newshoys fourished their papers elsouting, "Transcript, Journal, Traveller—There's no such Girl as Sally." At his place of husiness he opened his paper, and his eye fall upon a diaming advertisement—'There's no such Girl as Sally." At his place of husiness he opened his paper, and his eye fall upon a diaming advertisement—'There's no such Girl as Sally." Our daughters are rathing it on their planes; our boyle are related to an actual to a such Girl as Sally."

No song published has created such a sensation, or attained in so short a time such a widespread popularity. It is, most decidedly, Tim Song of the Bay.

Burning the inst few days, music-dealers were obliged to tell their entomers that they had not a copy. To avoid a repetition of so unfortunate a state of affairs, we have effected arraignments by which we can keep!
